Dear Debbi,

Being located in Tustin I have very little knowledge of Jackie's efforts in the local community although it would not surprise me that she might would be quite active. I can say that in my brief 3+ years working with her I have come to know her as someone who has very high ethical standards and a strong work ethic. She sets high standards for her team and holds them accountable. She is someone who naturally exhibits the attributes of the Rockwell Collins leadership model; she fearlessly pushes frontiers, exercises insightful judgement and has built powerful networks based on her many assignments and years with the company, and demands flawless execution of herself and others. As a result it is obvious that she has developed a respected reputation in the company and is a role model not only for other women for Rockwell Collins employees in general.
