

To Whom It May Concern:

This letter was written to support Evie Jeang, esq. for a potential nomination as a "woman of Influence" in Business Record. She has served as in house counsel for my company, Clement Partners, for the past few years. In addition to providing excellent legal work, I have had a chance to meet many business connections in many different fields through her social network. The breadth of friendships and connections she maintains is astonishing. I constantly marvel at how she is able to seemingly interact with people with such varying interests and personalities.

I have attended several events that she has organized, including the Annual Asian Youth Center Gala Celebration, which raises large amounts of money via silent auction and donations. Her recent recognition as a "Philanthropist of the Year" finalist for the Los Angeles Business Journal's Women Making a Difference Award embodies the reach she has in the community, via the numerous charities and Foundations she works for. She is dedicated to groups of all ages, from children via the Asian Youth Center, to senior citizens via her free Chinatown clinics.

I am proud to vouch for her character and the influence she possesses in her community. She absolutely deserves recognition as an Influential Woman by your prestigious organization.

Sincerely,

Nathan Richards
