

Sages Over Seventy:

Jody Reynolds:

Among a long list of successful charitable endeavours, Jody Reynolds has been a stalwart of helping children who are sick, disadvantaged or live with special needs through Variety – the Children's Charity of Iowa and Variety International, so much so Jody was elected as Variety's first female International President.

Jody has dedicated much time and resource to helping children through being an advisor, Board Director, Chair of various committees including her current position as chair of the Variety International Advisory Council, and a very successful term as International President. Jody has also been heavily involved in the organisation of many Variety Conferences, children's events and fundraising events for many years.

Jody's ongoing contribution to Variety International, as well as Variety of Iowa, is greatly appreciated and valued by everyone associated with the charity.

The definition of a humanitarian is one who by way of aid and action saves lives, alleviates suffering, protects human dignity and advances social reform. Jody embodies this definition and I have no hesitation in recommending Jody for the Sages Over Seventy recognition.

Sincerely

David Small
